The proposal (1/2)

The proposal (2/2)

What have we done? (1/2)

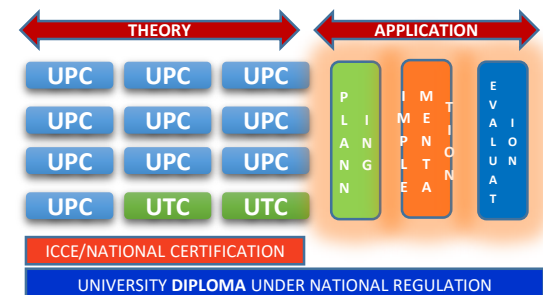

- Became an education service provider (CICAD/UPCH)
- Adapted the UPC-Coordinator Series for a diploma,
- Diploma approved officially at the UPCH.
 - Study plan
 - Syllabus
 - Certification process
- Guide for implementation of the diploma in other universities in the region (CICAD)

What have we done? (2/2)

- Delivered the documents to other universities for piloting the implementation of the UPC-based diploma: diploma proposal, syllabus, and implementation guide
- Delivered courses to pilot interactive teaching strategies in the Diploma and to have a closer idea of the potential audience and their needs.

Where we are?

- Delivering the diploma for coordinators and implementers involved in the Demonstration and Evaluation of the UPC Series Project
 - The primary goal of the project is to provide prevention professionals with the knowledge and skills necessary to implement evidence-based substance use school prevention interventions and policies. The UPC is designed to help ensure that nationally- and regionally-based prevention professionals obtain consistent, accurate, and up-to-date science-based information and skills training.

Emergent challenges (1/3)

- Related to the audience:
 - Understand and adjust in practice the role of prevention coordinators and implementers
 - Training of coordinators at implementers' level.

Emergent challenges (3/3)

- Related to the university structure:
 - Identify the “real” owner of the program?
 - The school program links human development and conduct theories, learning theories, teaching strategies, social mobilization, best practices....

Emergent challenges (3/4)

- Related to the university structure:
 - Transition from an interdisciplinary to a transdisciplinary approach.
